cover who was to blame for the latest mistake and said he was concerned for shops and businesses.

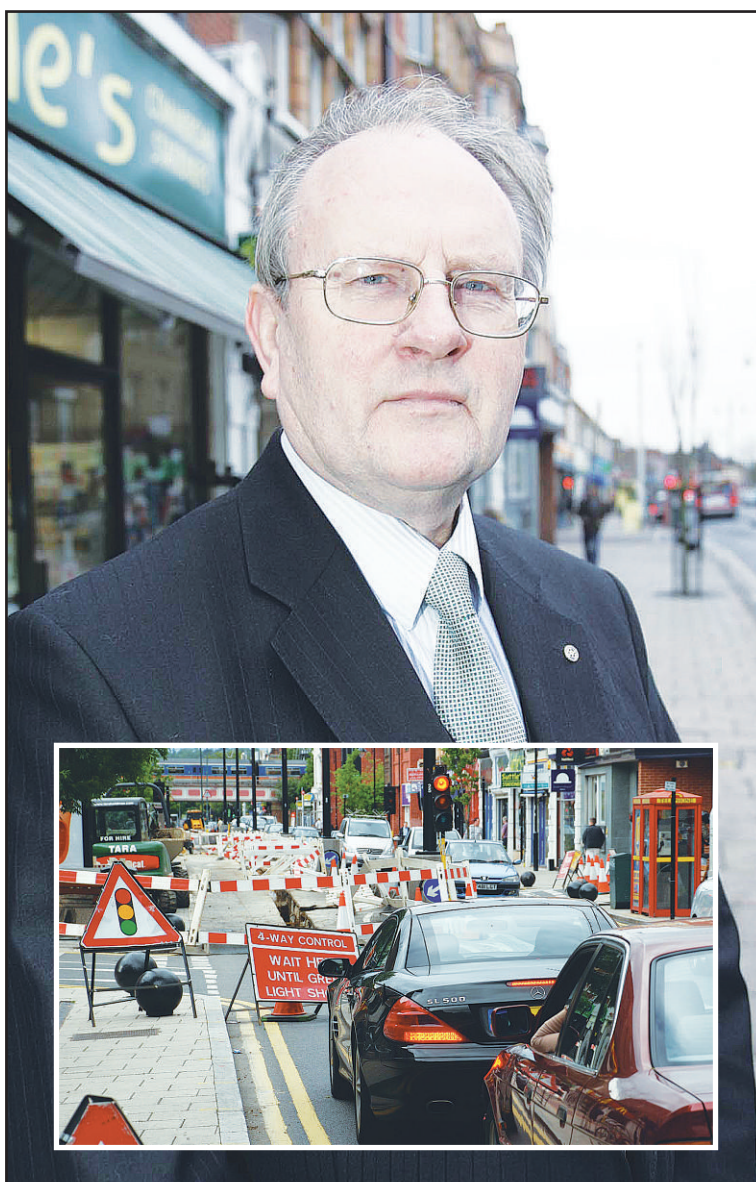

He said: "I'm extremely worried about the traders, they are the lifeblood of New Malden and everything must be done to assist them."

"As far as I know suspensions have been going on for some time but nobody is sure whether these people are still suspended or part of the council again - we as councillors just don't know what's going on."

A spokesman for Kingston Council said: "Inquiries are under way in accordance with council procedures and as matters are confidential between the council and its employees, we cannot offer further comment."

"We are sorry that further remedial works will be necessary and apologise to residents and businesses for the disruption that it will cause - we will be doing all we can to minimise this."

Mental health issues on film

by CHLOE LAMBERT

clambert@london.newsquest.co.uk

A free film festival which aims to raise awareness of mental health issues among black and ethnic minority residents in Kingston opens on March 9.

Meera Syal, comedian, writer and star of Goodness Gracious Me and The Kumars at No 42, is among the celebrities getting involved.

The second annual Happy Soul Festival brings together the best in black, Asian and Korean film, arts and music in Kingston and neighbouring boroughs.

Syal said: "Mental health is a difficult issue to broach and discuss in our communities, and something we often hide in the family."

"But through honest discussion and through other avenues such as film and music we can open up and explore these sensitive issues together."

Along with Odeon movie screenings, exhibitions and talks, you can meet top directors and film talent at the eight-day festival.

You can even book to have tea and samosas with Meera on Wednesday, March 12.

All the events are free but places should be booked.

Among the highlights of the festival is a rare screening of Pressure, the first black British feature film.

Directed by Horace Ove, it tracks the life of a young Caribbean man in 1970s London and the conflicting influences of racism, peer pressure and religion.

Self-harm, loneliness, gun crime and bullying are among the issues explored in a film made by young people from Wandsworth and Merton.

Residents can also see a special preview of a new offbeat Korean film about a girl who thinks she is a combat cyborg.

The festival aims to get ethnic minority people thinking and talking about the mental health issues that affect them.

Festival director Cary Rajinder Sawhney said: "It's worth coming along to see spectacular new films – some tear-jerking, some uplifting – and also live bands and debates."

"And it's all free." For a full list of events, and details on how to book, call 020 8682 6375 or visit the website below.

Three life sentences for absent murderer

Bus stop stalker Levi Bellfield will spend the rest of his days in prison after being found guilty of murdering Marsha McDonnell and Amelie Delagrangé.

He was also sentenced for the attempted murder of Kate Sheedy, who survived despite being run over by Bellfield twice.

Bellfield refused to come before a judge for sentencing at the Old Bailey on Tuesday, but was given three life sentences in his absence.

Mrs Justice Rafferty said: "You have reduced three families to unimaginable grief.

"The statements I have read and the words the court heard this morning were hard for many a professional to bear.

"Marsha McDonnell was yards from her home in a quiet residential area of Hampton.

"Aged 19, she was beaten to the head and left to die on the pavement."

Detective Chief Inspector Colin Sutton, the officer who led the investigation team, was called to the witness stand by the judge after sentencing and was told: "The road has sometimes been rocky but this case has depended on hours and hours of painstaking work and relied on dedication and patience. I commend you and your team."

Bellfield was said to have winked, made gestures and mouthed obscenities at the families during earlier proceedings.

Mother haunted by baby's death

A mother whose baby suffered brain damage during labour after waiting too long for help from Kingston Hospital staff has spoken out.

Jo Brooker's daughter Holly stopped breathing as she was delivered, and after being revived was left quadriplegic, epileptic and unable to suck or swallow. She died five years ago, aged two.

Mrs Brooker had been left in the second stage of labour for four hours, despite the normal maximum being two.

Kingston Hospital apologised and paid Mrs Brooker an out-of-court settlement, but she told the Daily Telegraph newspaper she was still "haunted" by the episode.

Fighting the postal threat

by KERRY GROVE

kgrove@london.newsquest.co.uk

The Save our Post Offices campaign being led by the Kingston Guardian's sister paper, the Surrey Comet, gathered pace last week.

Hundreds of people have signed petitions, which can be found in the borough's newsagents and online at surreycomet.co.uk or at kingston.gov.uk

And dozens gathered outside the six borough post offices earmarked for closure on Saturday to voice their concerns.

Branches in Burlington Road and Kingston Road in New Malden, Hook Rise South in Surbiton, Malden Road in Worcester Park, Surbiton Road in Kingston, and Chestnut Grove in Richmond Road, Kingston, could all be closed by July.

Lesley Harrison, manager of the Plough Green branch in Malden Road, said at least 50 of her customers came out to support the protest on Saturday.

The shop has also launched its own petition and has already collected 500 signatures from worried residents.

She said: "All we can do is keep our fingers crossed.

"There are quite a few of my customers who are going mad because they don't want to use the post office up the road in Worcester Park.

"The shop is very long and the aisles are very small.

"There are always queues out the door and there is never anywhere to park."

Post office customers affected by the proposed closures are being encouraged to speak out at a public meeting on Friday, February 29.

Representatives from Post Office Ltd and Royal Mail, and MP Edward Davey will be at the Old Malden Church Hall, 411 Malden Road, from 6.30pm.

A second meeting on the closures is being arranged for a later date.

Blaze guts first-floor flat

Four fire engines and about 20 firefighters were called to a blaze that roared through a house in Surbiton on Monday afternoon.

After being called at 4.46pm, firefighters battled against flames that engulfed the house in Tankerton Road until the fire was under control by 5.37pm.

Half of the roof was damaged and the whole first floor effectively gutted.

Three people escaped the building before the brigade arrived but a man was taken to Kingston Hospital with smoke inhalation.

The cause of the fire is under investigation. If you would like a fire safety visit from your local brigade, where free alarms will be distributed, call 0800 284428.

Safety survey

An online youth survey went live on Monday, February 25, on the safer neighbourhood website.

Running until March 20, the anonymous survey, aimed at 11 to 18-year-olds, can be used to inform local police teams of concerns and unsafe areas around a neighbourhood or school journey.

Internet paedo jailed

A Kingston accountant who downloaded nearly 500 pornographic pictures of children has been jailed.

Andrew Lock, 52, of Cromwell Road, was caught after police searched his home on May 10 last year and seized four computers.

It was later discovered three of the computers contained a total of 489 indecent images of children and Lock was arrested and charged on July 19, 2007.

He pleaded guilty on January 29 to nine counts of making indecent images and one count of possessing an indecent image of a child under nine.

Detective Constable Richard Morgan, of the Metropolitan Police paedophile unit, said: "This case demonstrates that no matter how many indecent images a person downloads, a handful or thousands, this type of illegal activity puts innocent children at risk and will not be tolerated."

"The Met Police's paedophile unit sends out a strong deterrent message to anyone considering that the internet is a suitable place to illegally target children."

"Every day, the Metropolitan Police have specialist officers online, tracking down paedophiles to help keep the internet safe for children."

Lock was sentenced at Southwark Crown Court on February 22 to six months' imprisonment and was placed on the sex offenders' register for 10 years.

'This side of insanity'

Musically talented snakes, dogs and pigs greeted an audience at the Cornerhouse in Surbiton last Friday.

The London Philharmonic Skiffle Orchestra made their second trip to the theatre, after touring the UK and visiting Denmark and Norway.

The band, described by critics as "just this side of insane", brought a high energy performance complete with animal costumes.

The four-piece band has been touring for seven years, and came to Surbiton because member Captain Cabbage, real name Ian Durrant, lives in Morden. Captain Cabbage plays the washboard, suitcases, the saw, percussion and a trumpet.

Cellist has another string to her bow

by ALITA HOWE

ahowe@london.newsquest.co.uk

A cello enthusiast staged the borough's first two-day festival in honour of the instrument last weekend.

Musician Gill Walshaw, 27, spent six months organising the Kingston Cello Festival in conjunction with Kingston University.

The festival took place on February 23 and 24 and highlights included a baroque workshop led by Paris-based visiting tutor Emily Robinson, a founding member of prestigious Diapason d'Or award-winning Opera Quarta, and a masterclass with renowned concerto soloist William Bruce.

Ms Walshaw, who teaches privately in Kingston as well as working at schools in Lambeth, said: "I wanted to try to bring together a disparate local scene to create a valuable event for the local community."

"I hope it was inspirational for children as well as adults - I wanted to make it as open and accessible as possible."

Visitors were also able to enjoy a cello quartet recital and there was a workshop for seven to 11-year-olds.

After a successful weekend, Ms Walshaw is hoping to make the festival an annual event.

She said: "It was definitely a success and we had great feedback on where we can take it next year."

"I want to connect the community and inspire cellists as well as non-cellists."

Safe from recession

With fears of a market slump and talk of recession, buying property in Kingston is still as safe as houses, according to new research.

Estate agent Knight Frank compiled a list of the 10 most recession-proof boroughs in London and Kingston came in at number two, pipped to the post only by neighbouring Richmond.

Luke Elwood, from Knight Frank's Richmond office, which covers Kingston, said there had been a "migration of purchasers" drawn from central London to the borough by the "attractive package" Kingston offers.

He said: "Young families are the key market and the drivers for them are good security and a safe environment, better square footage, good gardens and exceptional schooling."

"The market is still moving and buyers are very keen to buy if there is sensible pricing and there is a good demand for property."

Knight Frank's research took into account affordability of housing, wage and unemployment levels, population growth and residents' qualifications.

Eight out of the 10 boroughs in the list were in south London, with Wandsworth ranked fifth.

James Stevenson, Kingston sales manager for Foxtons, said the quality of life, good schools, transport links and open spaces of Kingston was what appealed to buyers.

First aid for carers

Volunteer carers in Kingston are being offered free first aid courses to help them cope with an emergency.

Sessions will run on February 27 and 28 at the King Charles Centre in King Charles Road, Surbiton, and will include advice on heart problems, strokes, broken bones and choking.

Widow has funeral cash on lap stolen

by KERRY GROVE

kgrove@london.newsquest.co.uk

A widow had almost £2,000 of cash stolen from her lap as she travelled to pay for her husband's funeral plot in Kingston.

The elderly woman was travelling on the 131 bus along Cambridge Road at about 11.40am on Tuesday, February 19, when the money was stolen.

The money was in a brown envelope, along with a passport and printed letter, and was inside a zipped up canvas bag, which she was taking to pay for the funeral plot at the cemetery.

Police are keen to question an elderly man who sat next to her and chatted to her on the journey.

A second man was stood to her right for a short time, before getting off the bus at Tiffin Boys' School in London Road.

As the bus moved from the stop she noticed her bag was partially unzipped and the envelope was gone.

The man sat next to her was white, aged about 75, clean-shaven with dark grey hair.

He was of a slim build and was 5ft 5ins (164cm) wearing dark clothing.

The male standing next to her was black, aged in his 30s, clean-shaven with short black hair. He had a slim build and was about 5ft 7ins (170cm) and was also wearing dark clothing.

Police are appealing for witnesses to contact PC George Alway from Kingston police on 020 8721 5847. Alternatively, call Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

'Don't fear ID cards – fear the database'

People should not fear ID cards, but the database behind them, according to Councillor Mary Reid.

The Chessington North and Hook councillor expressed her fear that incompetence in handling data could put at risk people's details.

Writing on her blog, Coun Reid said: "Don't be lulled by the term 'ID card'.

"It's not the card that's the problem – it's the huge database behind it.

"This database will hold very large amounts of data about each person, and will include biometric data such as fingerprints, iris scans or DNA analysis.

by PETER TRUMAN

ptruman@london.newsquest.co.uk

"There are basically two problems associated with the security of this data – fraud and incompetence."

Kingston is no stranger to data loss, after test results of over 100 patients were lost en route from Kingston Hospital to Queen Mary's Hospital in Roehampton.

And failings on a national scale have led Coun Reid to worry about the security of any data in one large database.

The Liberal Democrat councillor added: "Security systems always have their weaknesses, often human rather than electronic, and at some point it is inevitable that the weaknesses will be exposed."

She warned those who thought that only criminals had anything to worry about were basing that on the system being 100 per cent secure.

The database would also be tempting to fraudsters, Coun Reid explained, with some staff potentially selling the data illegally or using it themselves for ID theft or blackmail.

Liberal Democrat leader Nick Clegg had already pledged to refuse an ID card, even if he were sent to court because of his stance.

St John after more volunteers

Sporting chance:
St John Ambulance is looking for new volunteers

Kingston students are being urged to make a difference and join the St John Ambulance team during Student Volunteering Week, from February 25 to March 2.

Volunteers could find themselves providing support at events from the London Marathon to Notting Hill Carnival – and at the majority of the city's top stadia, from Lords to Wimbledon.

"How I Transformed My Kitchen Without Having to Buy a New One"

"I would recommend Dream Doors every time"

"My kitchen was over 10 years old and looked tatty. I desperately needed a new kitchen but didn't want the cost or upheaval. I had heard good reports of Dream Doors, who specialise in kitchen facelifts, so I decided to give them a try. What an amazing transformation!

As well as fitting brand new doors and worktops, everything was colour co-ordinated and I even gained additional cupboard space. My kitchen has been transformed in just over a day and I saved 60% of the cost of a new one!

I was under no obligation from the initial visit, and the advice and estimate I received were free of charge. There was no mess, no fuss, just plenty of friendly, helpful advice and I didn't need to pay the balance until I was completely satisfied!

Small business help is urged

Not enough has been done by the Competition Commission to help small businesses in the grocery market, according to the Federation for Small Businesses.

It criticised the commission's recent report for being too narrow and letting consumers down, and called for an independent regulator. Last week, the Kingston Guardian reported on local fears the report would not be enough to stop Tesco building in Tolworth.

Big gig: We Stole Cairo have reached the regional final of the Live and Unsigned competition

Teen group reach final

by ALITA HOWE

ahowe@london.newsquest.co.uk

A group of teenage rockers are celebrating after beating more than 10,000 entrants to reach the regional finals of a national unsigned band competition.

We Stole Cairo is made up of four friends from Kingston Grammar School and Esher College who have only been together a year and entered the Live and Unsigned competition after being spotted at a gig.

Cameron Stewart, 16, from Twickenham, is a pupil at Kingston Grammar School and taught himself to play the guitar in just eight months.

He said: "We were urged to enter the competition after playing a gig at the Institute of Contemporary Arts in London and we're chuffed to bits with everything that has happened since."

The band is made up of guitarist Mark Murray, 17, of Wimbledon, drummer James Simpson, 17, of Thames Ditton, and lead singer and bassist Rory Johnson, 17, of Wimbledon.

Speaking about the inspiration for the band's unusual name, Cameron said: "We were just sitting around one day and it stuck."

"We've never been to Egypt but I'm not sure they'd welcome us with a name like ours if we went there!"

The band, who describe themselves as having an indie alternative rock sound, have been busy recording their self-released debut album, Patterns, and write all their own music and lyrics.

Cameron said: "Our inspiration is bands such as Bloc Party, Radiohead, Editors and The Strokes but we'd like to diverge into different styles and our own sound."

We Stole Cairo will now battle it out at the Live and Unsigned regional final in Aldershot on April 5 for a coveted place in the national final, where the overall winners will win a recording contract worth £20,000.

Business giving community care

An award scheme to recognise outstanding businesses in Kingston has been launched by Kingston Chamber of Commerce and Kingston Council.

Kingston Business Champions will promote community involvement by businesses in the borough and reward those already supporting good causes and putting something back into their local area.

Chamber chief executive Lisa Gagliani said: "The awards will promote the good work being done by businesses who want to do the right thing for their community."

There are seven categories, including best environmental project, best commitment to the community, best volunteer and best disability friendly employer.

by ALITA HOWE

ahowe@london.newsquest.co.uk

The awards are supported by mayor of Kingston Councillor Shiraz Mirza, who wanted to mark 2008 with an event to thank businesses which have helped support the mayor's charities and other good causes.

The awards are open to any business in the borough of Kingston and are sponsored by Kingston College. Nominations are already under way and the award ceremony will take place at the Holiday Inn, Chessington World of Adventures, on April 24.

For details and to register, call the chamber office on 020 8541 4441 for an application form.

Wedding shop is ready for its big day

A wedding shop with stores in Kingston and Walton has been shortlisted for three awards in a prestigious national competition.

Love Me Do Brides, which has shops in New Zealand Avenue, Walton, and Park Road, Kingston, is a finalist in the best bridal retailer, best website retailer and best grooms hire categories of the 2008 Bridal Buyer awards.

Owner Sharon Wilson said: "We are very excited by the awards, to get one would be wonderful, to get all three would be fantastic!

"A lot of hard work from my lovely team of girls has finally been recognised, so we have our fingers, eyes and legs crossed."

The award ceremony will take place on March 10.

Love of cuddles: Sian Loring with Kingston's Best Dog, three-month-old Alfie

Deadlinepix KT19524

Alfie's an instant hit with his new owners

by PETER TRUMAN

ptruman@london.newsquest.co.uk

To most, the name Alfie conjures up a suave womanising Michael Caine or the dulcet tones of Scouse warbler Cilla Black.

It is also the name bestowed upon our next nomination for Kingston's Best Dog.

This Alfie is a three-month-old cavalier King Charles spaniel blenheim colour puppy and is owned by Sian Loring from Worcester Park.

Sian has owned Alfie since he was nine weeks old and said that she had already decided on the breed she wanted.

She said: "We had a similar dog but after 17 years she died and she was so great we decided we would go back to that breed."

"The house was so quiet when the other dog died and you get so used to the sound of a dog that we had to get another one."

Alfie was bought from a breeder in Tolworth and immediately became part of the family.

"He's so friendly with everyone and has a great personality."

"He picks things up really quickly – after two days he knew where his food was and would bang at the door of the cupboard if he was hungry."

"He also seems to understand what you say – if I tell him we are going for a walk, he will run to the door and get ready."

Sian is lucky to have a large garden and Alfie likes nothing more than covering every blade of grass while playing with his ball.

Alfie also has a penchant for cuddles and loves to sit in Sian's lap.

Next week will be the last nomination for Kingston's Best Dog, before a round-up of all the entrants the following week – so get your votes in.

Send in your nominations by email to ptruman@london.newsquest.co.uk, post it at our website or send a letter to Kingston's Best Dog, Unecol House, 819 London Road, North Cheam, Surrey SM3 9BN.

Alternatively, you can nominate or vote by text and you could win a bottle of champagne. See the box below for details.

Businesses get last chance for awards

by ALITA HOWE

ahowe@london.newsquest.co.uk

An extension to the deadline has given businesses a final chance to enter the prestigious South London Business Awards.

Due to the level of interest, the deadline has been extended by a week and companies have until Friday, February 29, to send submissions in. As well as receiving free tickets to the networking event of the year, held at Crystal Palace Football Club, being short-listed for a South London Business Award has many benefits.

It increases recognition of the organisation, ensures invaluable press coverage and is a huge boost for the efforts of a company's staff. More than 400 of south London's business elite will gather in a marquee, unusually located on the pitch of Selhurst Park, to learn the identities of the winners and celebrate the achievements of the region's top companies.

The evening will kick off with a champagne reception followed by a gourmet four-course dinner.

Guests will then be encouraged to dance the night away.

There are 10 awards on offer, including company of the year and south London entrepreneur of the year.

A high-powered panel of judges headed by Peter Pledger, chief executive, South London Business, will choose the lucky winners.

Table sales are going fast and if you would like to host a table for your clients, treat your staff or network with the region's finest – book now to avoid disappointment.

For ticket availability, please call the awards office on 0870 6093048.

Entering is simple and can be done on-line at southlondonbusinessawards.co.uk

Dino's raptor-ous centre reception

A raptor from ITV1 show Primeval descended on the Bentall Centre on Saturday to help host a colouring competition.

Scenes from the show were filmed in the shopping centre last year and the raptor made a welcome return to join in the half-term activities on February 23.

A colouring competition was held during the day with Primeval goodies up for grabs for the winners.

SAFE JOURNEY: More than 100,000 people ensured a safe journey home by texting Cabwise in 2007, three times as many as when it launched two years ago. The service, part of a partnership between the GLA, the Metropolitan Police and Transport for London, sends texters the phone numbers of a black cab company and two licensed minicab firms. By texting "home" to 60835 the area the caller is in can be identified.

SKETCHING MUM: A caricaturist will be on hand at the Bentall Centre this weekend offering free treats for Mother's Day. The caricaturists will be sketching mums and their children on the ground floor on Saturday, March 1, from 10am to 5.30pm and Sunday, March 2, from 10am to 4.30pm.

Class sizes are small

Marymount International School, London, is an independent Catholic day and boarding school that welcomes girls of all faiths, aged 11 to 18.

Students follow the International Baccalaureate programme, recognised globally by universities as a benchmark of quality in education.

As one of the first IB schools in the UK, Marymount excels with experience and continues to be placed in the top 3.5 per cent of the 1,000 schools in the UK, as listed in The Times Top Schools 2007.

Students work hard and achieve outstanding results. Two students this year achieving the perfect score of 45 (equivalent to at least five A grades at A level) and almost all continue on to university.

Located on a private estate, just 12 miles from central London, Marymount London enrolls 240 girls, representing more than 40 countries.

Class sizes are small and study programmes are planned to meet the needs of individual students.

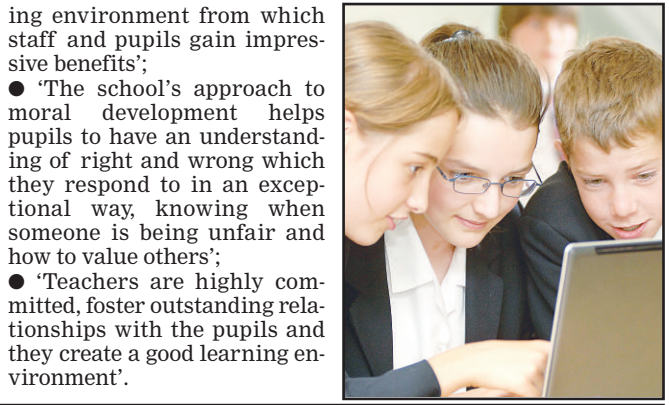

The school aims to educate young women to become the global leaders of tomorrow and follows the example of its founders, 'that all may have life and have it to the full.'

Inspectors praise co-ed Claremont Fan

Claremont Fan Court School is a co-educational school for pupils from three to 18 years old. It has been celebrating the results of its Whole School Inspection with so many aspects of the school being found to be excellent or outstanding.

- The quality of teaching is 'consistently good and in just under a third of lessons observed to be outstanding';
- Pupils spiritual, moral, social and cultural development is outstanding. They have high self-esteem and self-confidence;
- Junior School pupils have been found to be 'experts in the use of ICT' and 'they read well, are articulate, have a good vocabulary and write effectively';
- 'Pupils' cultural development is outstanding';
- 'Pupils' behaviour is exemplary' and they 'have an outstanding sense of social responsibility';
- The school 'has become a leader in combining independent learning and technology to provide a stimulating learning environment from which staff and pupils gain impressive benefits';
- 'The school's approach to moral development helps pupils to have an understanding of right and wrong which they respond to in an exceptional way, knowing when someone is being unfair and how to value others';
- 'Teachers are highly committed, foster outstanding relationships with the pupils and they create a good learning environment'.

Green Guardian

In association with Kingston Council

You give us the thumbs up

by MATT WATTS

mwatts@london.newsquest.co.uk

The Green Guardian environmental project has received a ringing endorsement from readers in a recent customer satisfaction questionnaire.

Two-thirds of respondents said they read the Green Guardian page every week and a similar number said something they had read, or seen on our website, had prompted them to take action to protect the environment.

Our coverage of local environmental news got a big thumbs up, with 85 per cent of the 163 respondents rating it as good or very good.

Almost two-thirds knew about the Green Guardian awards and a whopping 96 per cent supported the concept of local environmental awards.

Newspapers proved to be the most popular way of receiving information about the environment, followed by websites, newsletters and email in that order.

Only a third of respondents had so far used green guardian.co.uk and weekly usage was 19 per cent.

Environmental top tips followed by local news were the most popular pages on the website.

Green Guardian founder, and Kingston Guardian editor, Sean Duggan said it was great to have confirmation that people valued the project so much and really acted on the information it provides.

And he pledged that the feedback from readers would be used to improve this year's campaign when it launches in late March.

He said: "We know of so many examples of people who have been inspired by the awards and by learning about what other people in their area are doing."

"It is good to get some hard statistics on which aspects of the project are the most effective. But we are not resting on our laurels."

□ Congratulations to Terry McGibbon, of Parkwood Road, Wimbledon, who won the £50 prize draw for those who responded to the questionnaire.

Say no to bricks: Will Stanwix with the wall Deadlinepix KT19399

Ex-straw-dinary wall!

Kingston University student Will Stanwix showed off the environmental benefits of a straw bale wall at the university's Go Green week launch party, being held in its C-Scaipe department.

Eddie Cowling, a C-Scaipe researcher, said: "There are many environmental benefits to the wall. They have much higher insulating qualities than brick, don't need toxic insulation put inside them and are completely biodegradable.

"Unlike brick, straw doesn't need to be fired either, which reduces carbon emissions."

The wall is built up with rough straw, then cut straw, and then coats of haired lime – a mixture of sand and lime. They can then be finished with plaster.

Poor energy consumption results

The average Kingston resident is responsible for 2.4 tonnes of carbon dioxide emissions from household gas and electricity use every year – the equivalent of a small car driving nearly 12,000 miles.

The latest figures from the

Tips on how to reduce a home's emissions are available at londonclimatechange.co.uk/greenhomes

Department for the Environment, Farms and Rural Affairs ranked the Royal borough's homes the 10th worst of London's local authority areas for energy consumption.

Post office cull proposed

Kingston could lose nearly a third of its post offices, after six branches were today earmarked for closure.

Soon enough, we won't be able to pay bills, send post or draw pensions out.

Simon, Surbiton

As someone with limited mobility and finances at the moment, the closure of the post office in Surbiton would be a huge blow. If this happened, it would mean all the expense and inconvenience of a trip into Kingston. I'm sure I speak for many in a similar predicament. Post Offices should be regarded as an essential public service to local communities.

Sarah Thomas, Surbiton

For most of us it is a once in a blue moon that we need to visit a Post Office. Either it's to return something incorrectly ordered online or you need to send a letter recorded delivery. But there are a large number of people who still look to the post office for far more. From the older generations, families and overseas students and visitors. From paying bills to sending parcels home! Us occasional users should not be silent as one day we may join those who need their Post Offices every week. Then it will be too late to make a fuss!

Cllr Nick Kirby, Surbiton

Healthy house prices for Kingston

With fears of a market slump and talk of recession, buying property in Kingston is as safe as houses according to new research.

So basically the only people who can buy property round this area now are people from further in the city who have stacks of cash. Forget the fact that people who were born and raised here can't afford to live in their home borough, as long as houses are selling its ok, right?

Ric, Kingston

Safety first should have been plan for roundabout

In the local Guardian of the February 21 there is a letter from Eleanor Tunncliffe headed "The roads are a dangerous place for bikes". I can't help contrasting this with your article "Designing the future in a very roundabout way" where a council officer says that he will take students' designs to the next phase by looking at detailed costing and addressing any safety concerns. I find this astounding as surely any competent highway authority would look to the safety of those using this complex and congested intersection before initiating any such schemes rather than leaving it to the last.

In fact, my impression is that it appears to be an afterthought! Certainly, cyclists are the most likely to be at risk. Should this proposal ever be carried out then it will be interesting to see who will take responsibility when a smart lawyer, defending a client who has hit a cyclist or pedestrian, says he or she had their attention diverted by the turning of the roundabout into a work of art. Moreover, should this plea succeed then it will be us, the community taxpayers, who will be bearing the cost.

Residents' go postal over 'city slicker' bosses

Judging by Saturday's turnout at the four sub-post office locations in Kingston to protest against their proposed closures, I have to say that at long last the worm has turned. I have rarely seen, and spoken to, so many angry fellow residents about the elimination of our public services, only equal to the anger recently shown by the council's decision to close the Hobkirk House day centre and the elimination of Kingston's public conveniences on grounds of efficiency and keeping our council tax down. It is clear what the name of the game is. Post Office Limited can fool some of the people some of the time, but they can't fool all of us all the time. The faceless city slickers, with their excessive and obscene salaries and bonuses are out to make a quick profit by selling off large and unique town centre post offices to finance their outrageous pay packets and bonuses. In my view unless and until we have a proper inquiry into all the finances of the post office, there should be no further closures and thus no redundancies for sub-post masters and others connected with this vital community service. The Government, my Government, and all others should stop and listen to us, the consumers and paymasters of the service.

COUNCILLOR STEVE
MAMA

Don't close this 'lifeline' CCTV will only hit trade

The protests last Saturday outside the four sub-post offices threatened with closure, clearly demonstrates the level of anger and despair of residents at the loss of what, for many, is a lifeline and, for all of us, the loss of yet another community service. Is there a conspiracy among the agents of Government to reduce the needy in our society to a point where they become so invisible they no longer have to be catered for, freeing the entire tax subsidy for the fat cats in management and for or prestigious, ego-stroking projects. Back in the 80, the Post Office, then a public body, contributed a significant amount to the treasury. The more profitable sections of the service were sold off leaving the less profitable sections of the service in public hands. This was given away on the promise that the socially useful parts would be supported at public expense. There is an increasing number of people who are so disadvantaged that they have no resources other than pensions, benefits and allowances. For these people, the sub-post office is truly a lifeline. How can the managers of Post Office Limited demand to be so highly paid from the public purse and then deny the most needy among us the means of survival?

RITA LEECH
Via email

Recently I parked in a single yellow to nip into the local post office on Surbiton Road. I was only there long enough to buy a paper, so no traffic warden would have caught me. No harm done, surely? Apparently not. I received a letter demanding £100, because the council has erected massive camera installations, at great expense, in nearby Penryn Road, that constantly monitor the post office for customers like me. I wasn't the first person to be caught like this, and the cameras hadn't been up long. It's pretty extortionate to fine £100 for parking on a single yellow line though, isn't it? Incidentally, they can photograph the number plate of your car, but the resolution of CCTV pictures isn't a good enough forensic image to nail an armed robber, I'm told by CCTV experts. Brilliant. So they've erected massive cameras purely to feed off any passing trade that might want to use the post office, but won't be there long enough to be caught by wardens. Now the Post Office has announced it is closing down the Surbiton Road branch, because it doesn't get enough trade. Coincidence? I don't think so!

Living under this flight path is 'dreadful'

I wanted to comment on the letter from Mrs Flack regarding the huge increase in aircraft activity. I live in Weybridge and we seem to be directly under a flight path, with planes leaving as early as 6.00am and as late as 12.30pm, usually every three minutes. Quite often we have incoming flights overhead as well so, with the likelihood of a fourth runway, it will get worse – it must be dreadful for those living near Heathrow.

Postal closures are simply 'inevitable'

Am I the only person outside the Government who is clear-sighted enough to realise the demise of our post offices is unavoidable? Of course, it is all very well people getting sentimental about them. However, year on year losses mean restructuring is necessary. In a few years time, after the inevitable has happened, people will have no doubt forgotten all about their "outrage" over post office closures and moved on to something entirely new to get upset about.

All these tragedies make me so grateful for family

Reading through this week's local papers, I couldn't help noticing how many deaths, murders, illness, attacks and robberies that have occurred. It really put things into perspective for me, as I tend to worry about the most insignificant of things and take everything else for granted. Suddenly, it doesn't matter that my internet connection is down, I haven't had time to wash the car and my jeans feel a bit tighter than normal. Instead, I have found myself feeling really grateful for my family, friends, home and job. I would like to offer my condolences to everyone who has suffered in any way from any of these tragedies. I hope that they all get the support and comfort that they need.

What was the inspiration behind the book?

My key message is that dieting does not work – ever.

We are all brainwashed by food manufacturers in this country – unhealthy food is marketed as Happy Meals, Sunny Delight and funsize chocolates, but it doesn't take long to change our relationship with food.

It was exciting to find a method that really did work and never wore off.

Having once had an eating disorder myself I felt able to cure other people, which I have been doing now for 24 years.

How did you get into hypnotherapy?

When I was teaching aerobics in America, every third girl was either an anorexic or bulimic.

In Los Angeles it is so sad because everyone, even the most beautiful women, value themselves by how much they weigh. I went to UCLA, studied hypno-

You have won many awards for your work – how does it feel to be recognised?

It feels amazing – it's lovely to have credibility but the loveliest thing is always the letters I get from people telling me I have changed their lives.

One of my clients who was obese flew me out to his wedding and it was so emotional seeing him dance when previously he could hardly move.

What is your role in Celebrity Fit Club?

My role was to do more than put the clients on a diet and have them work out – that's not enough. If you eat chocolate in the belief it will comfort you and then stop eating it for your diet you will go back to it eventually.

So instead of changing habits of action I changed their habits of thought and made them not want bad food so much.

The 'difficult' second album has been the undoing of many a promising band down the years.

Eager to recapture past glories, and anxious not to disappoint the established fan-base, they are often a simple rehash of their first offering.

But for Sam Duckworth, the genius behind Get Cape, Wear Cape, Fly, that route was never an option as he prepares to unleash his follow-up, Searching For The Hows And Whys.

Duckworth says: "There are a lot of bands that just try to do the same thing again on their next album."

"It was important to me to progress. It sounds more like a band now rather than one guy, a guitar and a laptop."

"There is a lot more texture, it's a lot fuller-sounding, and there is a lot more going on."

The 22-year-old earned a wealth of critical acclaim for 2006 album Chronicles of a Bohemian Teenager, which showcased the singer-songwriter's political slant.

Duckworth is renowned for adopting a firm stance on anti-racism, which included a run-in with the BNP.

He says: "It is important to put out a message. If you have a voice, and you are able to be heard, you should use it."

"This time, however, I have tried to keep it subtle."

"You do get pressure from people but, if you back down, you just end up being slave to a thousand masters."

Get Cape are wrapping up a UK headline tour. And the

GIGS: Get Cape, Wear Cape, Fly, Banquet Records & New Slang

Simon Fitzjohn

Southend-raised frontman says it is slightly awkward to tour new songs before anyone has heard them.

Duckworth adds: "It is strange when you know the crowds will be wanting to hear certain songs."

"But I've been happy that the fans have really responded to the new material."

With Get Cape's profile on the rise, Sam has found himself in demand. Recent appearances on Never Mind The Buzzcocks and Hollyoaks have all been part of the promotional process. But Duckworth insists he has simple aims.

He concludes: "To be going on Buzzcocks and Hollyoaks is a surreal experience because I'm not really used to being in front of the camera."

"I hope people will find something in the album to appeal to them and maybe something to make them think."

Get Cape, Wear Cape, Fly play at Banquet Records (6pm) and New Slang at the Works (8pm) on Feb 28. Invite only - call 020 8549 5871. Searching For The Hows And Whys is released on March 10.

Stormy times

Think Kingston, the borough's festival of ideas, gets off to a thought-provoking start with Tara Arts director Jatinder Verma's Thursday Q & A session. Tara, Britain's foremost Asian theatre group, has produced a radical rethink of Shakespeare's Tempest, thrusting it into a modern context of terrorism, radical thought and suspicion. And Verma insists contemporary theatre should be challenging. He says: "In Britain, there still seems to be theatre for whites, theatre for blacks, theatre for Asians and so on. My belief is that great stories cross borders." Verma established Tara in 1977, in the wake of a racist murder in Southall, and has guided the company through turbulent times. And the Tanzania-born director, whose family moved to Britain in 1968, feels the role of his company has grown. He adds: "Tara is much more important now. Despite being globalised, we have become more insular in a lot of ways. "A company like ours has an important role as we can show well-written stories can be relevant to all." Tara's ambitions received a jolt late last year when the Arts Council revealed it was to slash the group's funding as part of a cost-cutting drive. And Verma reveals his dismay at the move. He adds: "It was hugely disappointing, such a contradiction and deviation from policy. "How you can claim to have a multicultural policy and then discriminate against us is hard to believe. It was an absolutely ridiculous decision." But Verma has vowed to soldier on and is already planning his next assault on Shakespeare, with a production of the Bard's classic Richard III in the works. And he remains confident that, if the product is good, the audiences will come. He adds: "One of the things I will never do is pander down to audiences as they respond well when you give them the best. "Shakespeare is the Premier League of theatre – the benchmark to aim for. "But if you work hard, and present Shakespeare well, it can hold any audience in the world." Jatinder Verma: Theatre Without Borders, Rose Theatre, Kingston, Feb 28, 4.30pm, free for Tempest ticketholders. Jelly good fellows

Roaring success: The trio is enjoying success under new band name Omega 3

Roaring Jelly, the much-loved folk band that entertained so many throughout the 70s and 80s, brings back its unique combination of music and humour with a charity gig this Friday. Now under the guise of Omega 3, Clive Harvey, Derek Pearce and Graeme Taylor will produce a light-hearted romp in aid of Sam Beare Hospice. Harvey and Pearce are survivors of the original Roaring Jelly, who performed about 1,500 gigs over a 16-year period. And they have now teamed up with Taylor to launch a fresh assault on the nation's funnybones, as the new recruit admits. Taylor says: "Roaring Jelly was incredibly popular but ended up having to pack it in when Derek became profoundly deaf. "Thanks to the wonders of modern technology and hearing devices, he is now able to come back. "I knew them through a friend and played a few sessions. They asked if I'd consider joining and I jumped at the chance." Roaring Jelly carved a considerable niche through its brand of wit and musical ability, making countless TV appearances.

And Taylor is quick to offer his reasons for the band's long-standing appeal. He adds: "It is English humour in the same vein as Spike Milligan – plenty of banter and gags. Yet there is also a lot of musical interest." For Taylor, a guitarist for acts like Rolf Harris and John Tamms, Omega 3 provides a refreshing antidote to his normal fare. He says: "A lot of the projects I am involved in are quite serious. "There's nothing wrong with that but I have always had a keen sense of humour and Omega 3 allows me to indulge that side." Omega 3, St James Parish Centre, Weybridge, Feb 29, 7.30pm, £12.50, call 01932 423764.

Films Ones to watch

THE BANK JOB (15): Roger Donaldson's thriller tunnels through familiar ground and the film is severely handicapped by a lifeless leading man, Jason Statham, with all the charisma of a crowbar. His co-stars bring colour to their underwritten roles, while David Suchet hams it up as an East End porn mogul. ★★★★★

UNTRACEABLE (18): Untraceable is a disturbing thriller about a technical genius who uses the internet to torture his victims and the specialist team charged with tracking him down before more blood is spilt. Diane Lane slips effortlessly into the role of a ballsy mom and Colin Hanks provides some comic relief. ★★★★★

THE ACCIDENTAL HUSBAND (12A): Uma Thurman looks ill-at-ease in her comic role – she has to work incredibly hard for every half-hearted chuckle; so hard that we almost feel bad for not laughing more. The plot is incredibly contrived and unfolds without any surprises. ★★★★★

RAMBO (18): Twenty years after Rambo's last bloodthirsty tour of duty, Sylvester Stallone's iconic warrior stumbles out of retirement for a cinematic orgy of senseless carnage. Stallone looks his age, leaving you to wonder if Rambo will be able to navigate the perilous jungle terrain without the aid of a Zimmer. ★★★★★

BE KIND REWIND (12A): Jack Black stars in this quirky comedy about two best friends who, through outrageous misfortune, have to remake Hollywood blockbusters with only a camcorder and their ingenuity. The spoof remakes of some well-known movies are hilarious but there's little substance to this surreal romp. ★★★★★

Gore fest: You'll need a strong stomach for Rambo

MY BLUEBERRY NIGHTS (12A): This bittersweet, meandering love story marks the big screen debut for singer/songwriter Norah Jones, who delivers an assured performance as a woman who embarks on a journey of self-discovery when a relationship breaks up. Jude Law, Natalie Portman and David Strathairn also star. ★★★★★

THERE WILL BE BLOOD (15): Technically, Paul Thomas Anderson's film takes the breath away. Every frame is meticulously crafted and, in the eye of this storm, is Daniel Day-Lewis, bristling with malice in this Oscar-winning performance. ★★★★★

JUNO (12A): It's hard to imagine a more immaculately conceived or perfectly delivered comedy this year than Juno. Twenty-year-old Canadian actress Ellen Page was deservedly Oscar-nominated for her portrayal of a laconic 16-year-old mother-to-be. Supporting characters are sketched with affection, and Jennifer Garner, Jason Bateman, Michael Cera and co respond with great performances. ★★★★★

Aries March 21 - April 20

A face you thought you knew well is set to surprise you this week with behaviour that forces your hand in an issue you thought you could negotiate in. Events on Friday prove what has gone on behind the scenes. Say less rather than more until you are sure of what has really occurred. Call me now for a deeper view of events.

Call: 0906 585 4732

Taurus April 21 - May 21

It's time for you to try and look at your love life from a fresh perspective. You may not realise it Taurus but events in the past have made you a little biased and you have as the expression goes, been cutting off your nose to spite your face. Dramas played out at the weekend offer important facts. Call me now for exciting news on travel.

Call: 0906 585 4733

Gemini May 22 - June 21

Your family mean a lot to you but a sign such as you isn't always able to find the time to let their close ones know how much they really mean to them. Make the time for a Piscean though who needs your support after the very dramatic beginning to the year they have so far experienced. Call now to reveal which sign is feeding you lies.

Call: 0906 585 4734

Cancer June 22 - July 22

This week sees you travelling to places which you would not normally find yourself in. Life gets more interesting and you get the chance to find out what and who really stimulates you. Lies you tell in business come back on you so resist the temptation to say anything other than the truth. Call now to make your future something special.

Call: 0906 585 4735

Leo July 23 - Aug 24

Certain close ones seem to know your weak spots and are doing a very good job of feeling you lies. New ways for you to get on with difficult faces in your career can help you so save both time and money. Don't be afraid to put in a little extra overtime, it's sure to pay back dividends. Call me now to be the best you can be.

Call: 0906 585 4736

Virgo Aug 23 - Sept 22

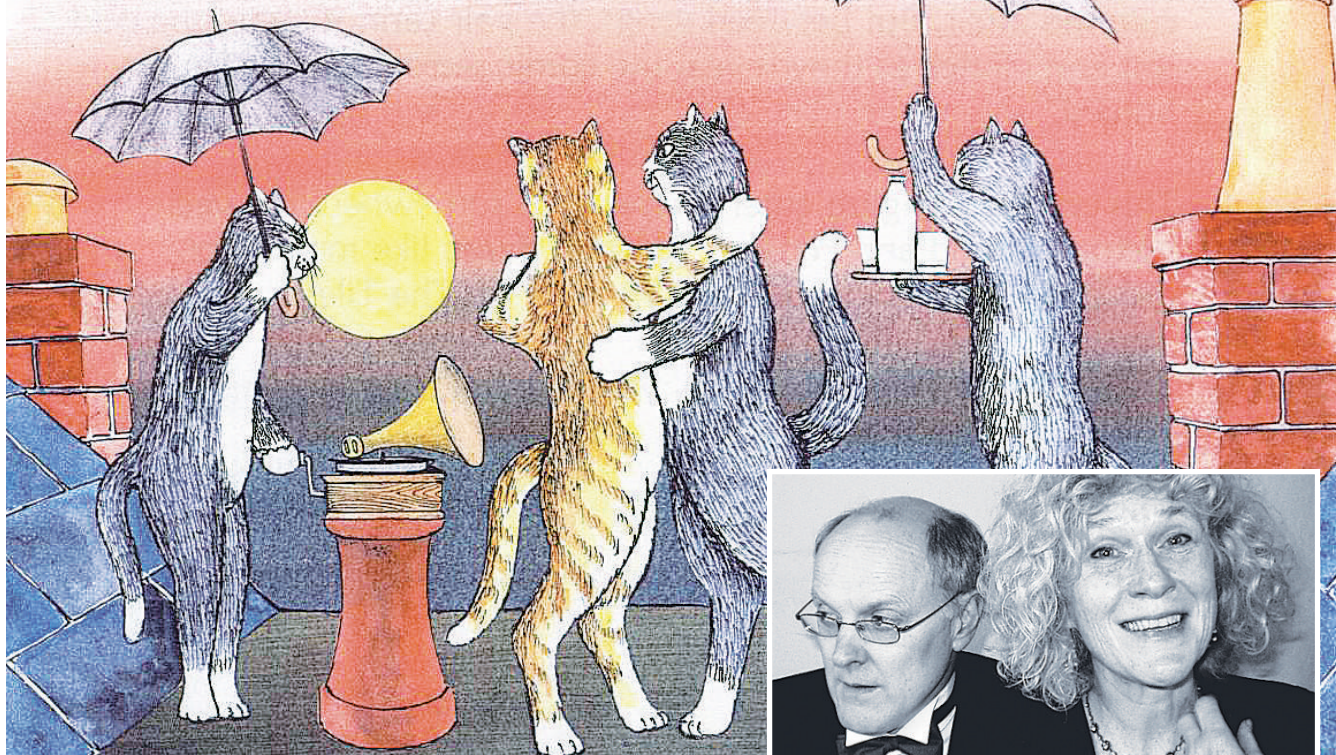

You and a close one have been growing apart lately. Don't blame yourself, sometimes we do go different ways and the main question to ask yourself is if you are happy. If you can part as friends then so be it. Experience is what teaches us and makes us wise. Events on Tuesday offer a new future. Call now for the finer details.

Cat's entertainment

Feline fine: A Night On The Tiles mixes music with comedy and cats. Inset: David Westbrook and Gillian Cally

Cat lovers are in for a purr-fect night out in Thames Ditton on Friday when Gillian Cally and David Westbrook bring their revue, A Night On The Tiles, to the Vera Fletcher Hall.

An evening of music, comedy and cats, Cally and Westbrook team up to put a spin on works by Mozart, Elgar, Handel and Bizet.

Aiming to provide something fresh, the duo is twisting lyrics to give them a feline slant. Pianist Westbrook provides an insight into the off-beat choice of topic.

He says: "It came from a very small idea from Gillian (a cat lover) who sang a few songs

THEATRE:
A Night On The Tiles, Vera Fletcher Hall
Simon Fitzjohn

rewriting lyrics from a cat's point of view.

"Gillian has known me for years and she asked if I wanted to get involved in expanding it to a full-blown show.

"I had to have my arm twisted but, in the end, I came on board and I'm glad I did."

Although the revue

naturally nods towards cat lovers, Westbrook is eager to point out that the show would appeal to all.

He adds: "We started with the songs and out of that has grown a lot of comedy.

"We play on the fact that we are an unusual couple and we act out little spats on stage – it is all good fun.

"People who have a love for cats will find it fun but there is a lot more to it, so it will entertain more than just them."

Westbrook is a veteran of numerous productions thanks to his work as a member of Sheffield's Compass Theatre group. He has also appeared on screen in numerous small roles in soaps. But for the 51-year-old, there is nothing to beat the magic of acting.

He adds: "I do love being on the stage but this is very different because it is much more audience interactive. It helps having done a lot of theatre because I have been able to draw on that experience.

"The only disappointment is we have not actually had any cats come along yet. We are obviously doing something wrong with the marketing!"

A Night On The Tiles, Feb 29, 8pm, Vera Fletcher Hall, Thames Ditton, £10, call 0844 884 8832.

Eyre and graces

Nature within the urban landscape is the subject of an exhibition at the Toilet Gallery in March.

The gallery is hosting the show About Town, the first solo exhibition by Susan Eyre.

Eyre uses mixed-media installations involving digital and silkscreen print on fabric, to invite the viewer to peer into the worlds she has created.

"The inspiration behind my work comes from an interest in how we physically change our environment," she explains.

"All the talk of climate change and the responsibility to change our lifestyle got me thinking about my own relationship with nature and how, living in the city, I had little contact with nature.

"That which I did have contact with wasn't real at all – it was all made very clean and accessible and bought from the shops."

Susan's first installation, Re:construction, provides a glimpse into a miniature dream-like

EXHIBITION:
About Town
Toilet Gallery
Simon Fitzjohn

world inspired by the myth of paradise but constructed from the everyday images of pot plants and items found around Susan's home.

This 'world' is viewed through a tiny hole in a large digital and silkscreen print of a cityscape.

"I took photographs of the pot plants, ornaments and toy animals around my home and used these to create a miniature stage set using printed fabrics which gives an initial impression of somewhere exotic, an idea of paradise with lush plants and lots of cute animals," says Eyre.

"It is a very false scene but reflects my own contact with nature."

The second installation uses images taken from

Paradise lost: Re:construction recreates the myth of Eden around Kingston to illustrate the contrast between the way in which a town develops in conjunction with the formal structuring of nature. Eden Walk is a collage of images from Kingston that are digitally printed on fabric and mounted on panels around cubicles.

Inside the cubicles is an idea of perfection in nature using silkscreen printing on muslin which is mounted on trellis.

"The city is printed in shades of grey to give an impression of monotony and also to highlight the bright colours of the tiny world within," Eyre adds.

About Town, Toilet Gallery, Clarence Street, Kingston, Feb 29 to March 22. Wed to Fri, 1pm-6pm, Sat 10am-6pm, Sun noon-5pm. Visit toiletgallery.org

Full & Part-time Customer Service Advisers

£12,850 + potential £2,000 bonus · Surbiton

At Dyno, part of the British Gas Group, we never forget that different people have different needs. So whether you want the rewards of a full-time career, or the flexibility of a part-time role (early mornings, evenings or weekends), there's something for you at our Surbiton contact centre.

Dedicated and enthusiastic, you'll be helping to deliver the kind of customer care that has made us the leading repair service for problems in the home. This will involve taking ownership of up to 80 calls a day – listening to the customer's concerns, getting to the bottom of the issue and making arrangements with our plumbers and engineers for the problem to be fixed. Our team of professional trainers will equip you with the skills you need to get on, and you'll also enjoy prizes and incentives for hitting your targets, plus a lively, team atmosphere.

It would of course, be great if you already have call centre experience. But it's more important that you can deal calmly and professionally with each call, reassuring the customer that help is on its way. If that sounds like you, please apply at www.britishgasacademy.co.uk/cc22.

Citroën C4 Picasso

French flyer

What's the best mini-MPV you can buy? We think it's this one, Citroën's C4 Picasso – and we've put our money where our mouth is by adding one to our long term test fleet. Jonathan Crouch put this new arrival to the test

These days, it's not good enough just to launch one mini-MPV: you have to launch two. Hence cars like Renault's Scenic and Grand Scenic and the model we're looking at here, the Citroën C4 Picasso, the five-seater stablemate to the French maker's Grand C4 Picasso. Citroën certainly offers plenty of MPV choice to an apparently hungry market.

There's the van-based Berlingo Multispace for budget buyers, or the old Xsara Picasso for those of them who can't cope with being mistaken for a delivery driver. Above the C4 Picasso models, there's also the larger C6. But do you really need something that big? The answer for most mini-MPV buyers is probably not – and for them, this 5-seat C4 Picasso, priced from £14,695, may prove to be a perfect package.

With a choice of a 127bhp 1.8-litre or 143bhp 2.0-litre petrol engines or 110bhp 1.6 or 138bhp 2.0-litre diesel units, C4 Picasso drivers won't be wanting for decent powerplants. The driving experience is, as was its predecessor, geared towards comfort and safety rather than outright handling prowess.

Although the C4 Picasso's athletic stance is the first thing to catch your eye, the second is the wide-angle panoramic windscreen that rises up and over the front seat occupants, doubling vertical visibility in the front to seventy degrees compared to 35 degrees in a standard MPV. The C4 Picasso utilises its available space very well.

That wheel at each corner stance doesn't just look good, it also maximises space for the all important passenger cell.

The boot has a 500-litre capacity which is about par for the course for a five-seater vehicle.

Fold the rear seats down and there's a massive 1.734 litres of available space.

The new Mitsubishi Lancer

The all-new Mitsubishi Lancer is launched this March with radical new styling. In fact the front of the car was influenced by jet fighter air intakes, with distinctively deep set headlights and taut lines.

The Lancer has a 34-year heritage of rallying, first winning the World Rally Championship in 1998. The handling characteristics of the new Lancer are derived from a platform that has been designed to cope with the extreme requirements of a rally car.

The new Lancer also comes with a host of standard features such as active stability and traction control, 18in alloy wheels, cruise control, privacy glass, air conditioning and sports suspension. The vehicle also has the full compliment of airbags including front, side, curtain and driver's knee. The Lancer is available with either a 1.8 petrol or 2.0 diesel engine and prices start at just £14,999.

Upon purchasing a new Lancer you can also take advantage of the industry leading Mitsubishi Service Plan. For just £200 you get three years (or 37,500 miles) servicing at your Mitsubishi dealer. All new Mitsubishis come complete with a three-year unlimited mileage warranty and pan-European roadside assistance package to provide entirely worry-free motoring.

Built on a longer wheelbase and wider track – but with a slightly shorter overall length than the previous model, the new Lancer has a more road-hugging attitude that is especially evident with the 18in alloy wheels and the sporty body kit. Visit your local Mitsubishi dealership in Putney or Chertsey to learn more about this fantastic new car.

New car road test: Vauxhall Corsa

A capital idea

London motorists have had a fairly hard time of it recently. There's the congestion charge putting a drain on the finances of anyone forced to drive into the centre of town. If things carry on in the current vein, the capital will soon have more speed cameras lurking at the roadsides than lampposts.

Then, if it's not a burst water main or an accident blocking your route to work in the morning, it's a man up a crane in a spiderman outfit. In light of all this, Vauxhall have taken steps to cheer-up London's brow-beaten car users with a new special edition. It's called the Corsa Capital and it's exclusively available in London.

The Corsa Capital is based on the popular and sporty

SXi trim level but it takes that derivative's purposeful looks and moves things on to the next level. The Capital benefits from a raft of styling upgrades fresh from Vauxhall's own Irmscher line of sports accessories. It features such attention-grabbers as twin chrome exhausts, a rear spoiler, tinted glass, an alloy petrol cap cover and alloy pedals.

There's metallic paint too. In fact, if you add together all the extras on the Capital the total costs comes to a whopping £1,350. The amazing thing is that the car only costs from £9,495 (£9,995 with air-conditioning) compared to the £9,810 required for an equivalent SXi. You do the maths.

The Corsa Capital is offered in three-door form only with the punchy 1.2-litre petrol engine that's amongst the favourites in the Corsa range. It also comes with a year's free insurance for drivers between 19 and 80 (subject to terms and conditions) so that's another big saving that Capital buyers can make.

All in all, it looks like another outstanding deal from Vauxhall.

Peugeot 308 range

Love and 8

By Steve Walker

A big interior and an economical engine range are strong points for Peugeot's 308 family hatch. The styling is striking rather than pretty but build quality looks strong and there's a high-class feel to the car's cabin.

There are six engine options for persons interested in a 308 to mull over. The 1.4-litre unit produces 95bhp while the 1.6-litre alternative has 120bhp. The next step up is the 150bhp turbocharged 1.6-litre engine THP.

The diesel range consists of Peugeot's excellent HDi common-rail diesel engines.

There's a 1.6-litre unit offered in 90 or 110bhp form and a 2.0-litre 136bhp option topping the range.

The 308 inherits the taller than average roofline that the 307 used to good effect in creating a roomy and airy interior but by shaving 12mm from its height while growing in terms of both length (by 74mm) and width (by 85mm), it achieves a far more dynamic stance than the old car. The long front overhang of the 308 adds to this impression, creating a wedge-shaped profile that brings a further sporty element to the car's shape.

Peugeot will be hoping that the first model in its '8' dynasty makes a big impression. The 308's styling is highly distinctive with the controversial front end treatment that's now evident right across the manufacturer's model range taking pride of place. In the engine room is a selection of proven units that have already seen service in the 207 amongst other models and the interior ups quality standards from the 307 while retaining its impressive spaciousness.

BMW 1 series range

One for the road

The compact 1 Series has offered a new direction for BMW that continues forward with these latest revised models. Some things however, are reassuringly familiar writes Andy Enright. Before we get into that though, you'll need to know about the latest changes. First, and most obviously, there are now both three-door and Coupe models selling alongside the existing five-door car, priced from £16,650. At the same time as expanding the range in this way, BMW has taken the opportunity to introduce some new technology to the line-up. Clever ideas like Brake Energy Regeneration, an Automatic Start-Stop function and Electric Power Steering are now combined with lower rolling resistant tyres and a gearshift change indicator to encourage economical motoring. These innovations are in addition to the use of variable valve technologies and High-Precision Direct Injection engines on some 1 Series models that boost power output but cut fuel consumption and emissions. Six engines are offered in the mainstream range, five with four cylinders and the powerful 3.0-litre six-cylinder unit in the 130i. A 116bhp

1.6-litre petrol engine powers the entry-level 116i, only offered in five-door form. The choice between three or five-door bodystyles starts with the 143bhp 118i or 118d variants. If you want a little more performance, opt for the 170bhp 120i or 177bhp 120d variants. At the top of the range, the 265bhp 130i is seriously rapid, the 0-60mph sprint takes 6s and the 155mph limiter will come into play if you continue to press on but don't expect much more than 30mpg. Opt for a Coupe, priced from £21,585, and there's a choice of either the familiar 120d engine or either of two new units, the 204bhp 123d diesel or a 306bhp twin-turbocharged 135i petrol flagship. Pricing ensures that this BMW will never be commonplace but the cabin quality, the driving experience and that badge will be enough to seal the deal for many, regardless of what they think of the looks.

Mini One

One
love

Although the latest MINI One looks similar to its predecessor, it shares barely any componentry. The philosophy this time round has been to ruthlessly excise all the parts that users felt weren't up to par and to keep the aspects of the MINI that they loved, styling manifestly being one of them, writes Andy Enright.

Although the One's stance remains the same, there's been a loosening of the belt. It's around 50mm longer, the front grille is tidier and the indicators are now housed in the headlight pod.

The car's shoulder line is 18mm higher than on the former model, giving the latest version a more hunched, powerful appearance. The One can be identified by its black radiator grille bars, external mirrors and hatch release.

It now uses a 95bhp 1.4-litre engine which offers a useful 5bhp power advantage over the old 1.6-litre unit.

Using the same BMW-sourced Valvetronic variable valve control, it's a very efficient engine. Torque is identical to the old, larger engine, the One capable of a respectable 140Nm, but emissions and fuel economy are far superior.

Where the old One managed 41.5mpg, the latest car is good for 49.6mpg – a massive improvement in percentage terms.

Pricing remains competitive with the One kicking off at £11,610 on the road. Buyers will often specify their cars to their own tastes and spend a good deal more, indulging themselves with options like DSC+ stability control.

Better built, more spacious and with a more economical and clean engine, the One proves that when it comes to MINIs there's really no need to target the top of the range.

Focused and sharper than ever

Ford's Focus now has sharper looks inside and out to match its sharper handling.

There's an eco-friendly diesel option, plus an extra 2.0TDCi unit.

What hasn't changed is the great packaging and rewarding driving dynamics. This car may be ubiquitous but it's still a great choice.

Benefiting from Ford's 'kinetic design' approach to styling, the latest Focus takes its inspiration from its larger Mondeo stablemate.

Trapezoidal grilles, swept back headlamps, bolder wheel arches, reshaped rear glass, a contoured tailgate and smarter tail lamps are the key changes.

Higher trim grades benefit from chrome detailing and a stylish, body-coloured upper rear spoiler.

Prices sit in pretty much the same £12,000 to £20,000 span as you'd expect, spread across three and five-door hatches, a four-door saloon, an estate and a Coupe-Cabriolet version with its fashionable metal folding roof.

Engine-wise, petrol buyers have the old 78bhp 1.4 and 98bhp 1.6-litre units at the foot of the range. If you need to go faster, there's a 123bhp 1.8-litre option, a 143bhp 2.0-litre petrol unit and the 220bhp 2.5-litre powerplant found in the ST models.

For diesel buyers, there's an entry-level 108bhp 1.6-litre TDCi, while above this unit sits the highly acclaimed 2.0-litre TDCi diesel that Ford developed with Peugeot.

Volkswagen Tiguan

A jacked-up Volkswagen Golf? Yes it is and that would probably be enough to guarantee success for Volkswagen's Tiguan compact 4x4. The fact that it only uses the Golf's best engines and that the 4x4 versions come with more off-road prowess than you'd expect in this sector makes it look like a winner all the way. Every engine in the Tiguan line-up is turbocharged or supercharged and turbocharged so pulling power shouldn't be in short supply. The units are a familiar bunch with the 140PS 2.0 TDI diesel likely to be the best seller. Alternatively, there's the groundbreaking turbocharged and super-

Golf buggy

By Steve Clarke

charged petrol engine that manages to extract 150PS from its 1.4-litre capacity. These are the main two engines available but your dealer will also happily take orders for a range of other powerplants also developed for this car. These include a 170PD 2.0 TDI unit, plus two other 2.0 TSI petrol units, developing either 170 or 200PS. Whether the Tiguan is any good off-road will be an irrelevance to most UK buyers as we don't take them off-road very much. That said, off-road ability has become a little bit of a badge of honour for compact 4x4s. Buyers don't need it but they'd like the model they choose to have it all the same. The 4x4 Tiguan uses the basic Haldex all-wheel-drive system from the Golf 4MOTION models but with a wider track and ground clearance increased to 189mm. It has a nice line in electronic trickery to help it out of sticky situations.

Mini Clubman range

Club class

It may have more doors but MINI's winning formula remains intact with the Clubman. Steve Walker reports

More than just a longer MINI, the MINI Clubman delivers its extra practicality in style. The basics behind the success of the standard MINI are retained but the weird and wonderful access options, including a single suicide door on the right flank and double doors at the rear, mark this car out.

The Clubman is a five-door car but the doors aren't exactly where you'd expect them to be. It's business as usual at the front but access to the rear seating is through a single 'suicide' door on the right-hand side. Hinged on its rearmost edge so that it opens in the opposite direction to the front doors, it's positioned on the right-hand side of the Clubman and there's no equivalent on the left.

At the back, there's more access fun and games. The Clubman employs a pair of side-hinged doors reminiscent of the old Mini Traveller. These are a key design feature of the car and the one that does most to differentiate Clubman from MINI. They feature cut-outs for the rear light clusters that mirror those in the bonnet. Separate wipers and the doors are also framed in the same colour as the roof trim.

The combination of unorthodox access points is certainly interesting but there is a question over whether they add anything in practicality over the conventional five-door hatchback layout favoured by all the MINI's rivals. The rear door can only be opened once the front door ahead of it is too and then passengers are forced to exit into the road which is less than ideal. What isn't in doubt is that it will be the Clubman's individual design and polished engineering that will seduce buyers.

BMW 320d range

BMW's 3D vision

First impressions suggest that for the serious driver, none of the 320d's rivals even gets close. If, like BMW, you understand what makes a great handling car, you'll find the sheer tactility and purity of the 320d utterly beguiling. If you're checking out rivals, try the 320d last. It'll make everything else feel woolly and lumpen.

It's quick, safe, well engineered, economical and desirable, and will retain a huge chunk of its value when the time comes to sell.

Statistically, the bald figures speak for themselves. Roll back the clock not too many years and the 320d's performance figures would have been a credit to a two litre petrol sportster. It'll get to 60mph in 7.9 seconds and run onto a top speed of 143mph. That's comfortably quicker than a 320i from the mid-nineties90s8.9 miles from a gallon of derv would leave engineers from 10 years ago slack-jawed in wonderment. Come to that, it'll leave many engineers today similarly bamboozled.

The 318d's outstanding economy and emissions figures come courtesy of BMW's EfficientDynamics technology programme. Features including Auto Start-Stop, Brake Energy Regeneration, high precision direct injection, active aero dynamics and optimum gear shift indicators go into EfficientDynamics and the results put BMW products near the top of the tree when it comes to environmental and running costs considerations.

Prices start at £24,910 for the entry level saloon, in 'value edition' ES form. If you like all the bells and whistles, the £25,940 SE variant will doubtless appeal and there's always the M Sport version for buyers harbouring M3 fantasies. Whichever trim level you opt for, you're getting the same fundamentals.

The 177bhp engine is one of the most powerful in its sub-class and is refined and civilised to boot. Like all E90 3 Series models, the starting process is slightly convoluted, and involves slotting the plastic key unit into the dashboard and then pressing a starter button to fire up the diesel unit. After the first couple of times you do it, the process seems a bit of an unnecessary work up, but the rewards are well worth it. The engine's torque comes in long, smooth streams and the engine disguises its turbocharged roots very well, feeling like a bigger, normally aspirated unit to drive. The thing that really impresses is how much work has gone into making the car feel suitably premium.

Run out of superlatives too early and it's easy to inadvertently play the 'virtual perfection' card. In few cases is it justified, but in the interests of denying future journalists the opportunity to crack a smile, I won't play it here. The BMW 320d is such a well rounded car, so brilliant in its engineering execution that it marches instantly to the top of the pile. Virtual perfection? Well, let's just say that some cars are more virtual than others.

Highly responsive. Incredibly responsible.

0-62 mph in 7 seconds with emissions of just 138 g/km CO₂. This extraordinary combination is possible thanks to a range of technologies called BMW EfficientDynamics which deliver an increase in performance together with a reduced impact on the environment. One small part of this programme is Auto Start-Stop. This standard feature switches off the engine when the car comes to rest and restarts it when the clutch is depressed, saving fuel and reducing emissions.

Auctions in Wimbledon

Are you thinking of purchasing a vehicle and have chosen to go down the used route? If so, where could you find the most choice and variety of vehicle at an extremely affordable price? Have you ever thought of venturing into an auction house? With a massive selection of vehicles and prices ranging from £100 up to £20,000, a visit to Manheim Auctions in Wimbledon could well be your best option.

Perhaps you wish to sell a car or van? By using the services of Manheim Auctions you have an excellent opportunity to gain the best possible price for your vehicle.

Manheim Auctions, the world's largest vehicle auctioneers, operates a network of 18 auction centres across the UK.

These centres are open to both trade buyers and private purchasers. If you haven't visited an auction before, and you're unsure about how an auction operates and how to proceed, they have a friendly reception team who can assist when you first enter the building along with staff present at every auction to guide you through the bidding process. All members of Manheim Auction's team are long serving, highly experienced and willing to help.

Manheim Auctions' Wimbledon Centre spans a seven-acre multi-storey site able to store 400 vehicles under cover. It offers 50,000 vehicles each year for sale and specialises in fleet, dealer and prestige and executive vehicles. This large centre has restaurant facilities and plenty of free customer parking.

A vehicle collection and delivery service can be provided along with vehicle refurbishment, reconditioning and valeting.

It also offers vehicles which are Manheim Assured. This makes a car more saleable by providing additional confidence in the vehicle with a guarantee to the buyer, based on a basic 15-point vehicle check by the Manheim Vehicle Inspection Team. Each vehicle undergoing an assured check is backed by a three-day money back promise for peace of mind.

Auctions take place on Wednesday and Friday at 10.30am and there's an evening auction on Wednesday at 6.30pm.

Tag team: Girls give rugby a try at the taster day

Youngsters stay active

Buoyed by the success of their recent taster day, Special Olympics Surrey are starting tag rugby for girls aged 10 to 14.

Sessions are held every Tuesday (4.15-5.15pm) at Kingsmeadow Athletics Stadium.

A team will be selected to represent Kingston at the London Youth Games.

For more information visit kingston.gov.uk/sport or call 020 8547 5207.

Tennis juniors are also sought to compete for Kingston.

Trials will take place at Canbury Gardens Tennis Centre in Lower Ham Road, Kingston, on Saturday, March 16 (9-11am).

For details call SJB Tennis on 020 8546 5935.

Meanwhile, the borough's young cricketers have made great start to their LYG competition, beating Camden by 36 runs and pushing Hounslow all the way before suffering a narrow defeat.

MCG come to the party for Ditton's 175th anniversary

Thames Ditton Cricket Club have received a copy of an engraving of Heathfield Harman Stephenson, captain of the first England side to tour Australia in 1861-62, from the Melbourne Cricket Club (MCG) in recognition of the club's 175th anniversary this year.

Esher-born Stephenson, known to his friends as Surgeon, played his formative years for Thames Ditton before going on to star for Surrey and England.

The original engraving hangs in the MCG pavilion and Graham Ashton, a former Thames Ditton CC president, saw it when he joined one of the guided tours of the famous ground prior to the Ashes Boxing Day Test in 2006.

"Towards the end of the tour, our party was led through the pavilion, passing a large mural depicting many of the famous cricketers who had played on that ground," Ashton said.

"Heathfield Stephenson was the first player to be represented. I told our guide all about him and that he was uncle of another Thames Ditton and England cricketer, Maurice Read. He seemed suitably impressed.

"Photography was in its infancy in those days and we had no picture of Stephenson in our archives.

"As part of our 175th celebrations, we are producing a history of the club.

"Recalling the mural at the MCG, I suggested to my Melbourne friends that they should go to the pavilion and take a digital photograph of Stephenson so it could be included in our history."

"Needless to say, they jibbed at this – the Long Room at the MCG is not far behind that at Lords as a revered institution – but, undeterred, I contacted the museum to see if they would help.

"Much to my delight, I received an e-mail from the MCG Museum administrator Peter Schmidt with this and various other pictures of that time, including two of the England team with Stephenson seated at the head."

Coincidentally, Stephenson was born in 1833 – the same year Thames Ditton CC was formed.

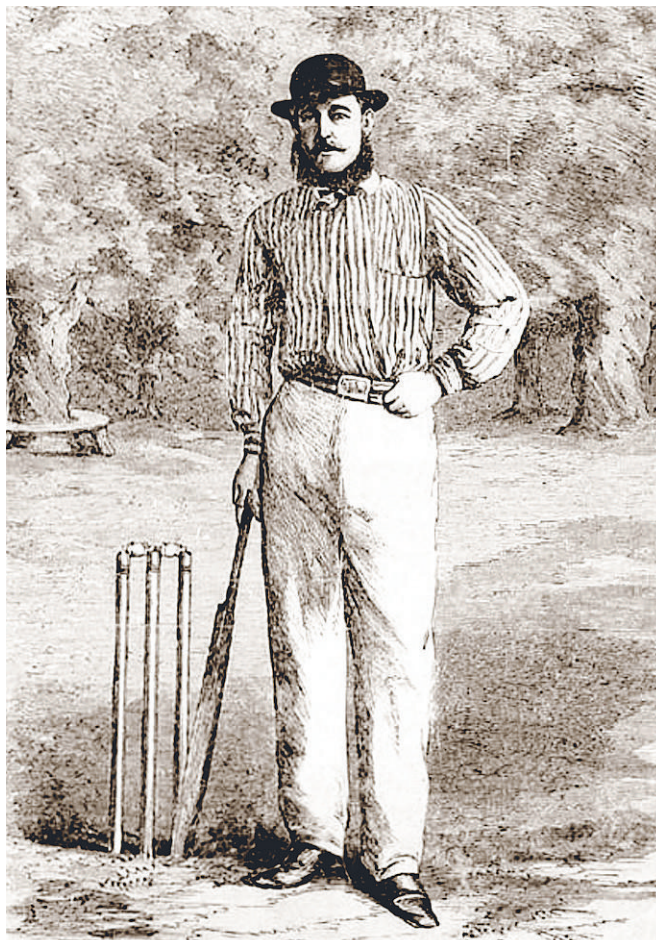

He was a member of the maiden England touring side, which went to America in 1859.

He also umpired in the inaugural Test match in England at The Oval in 1880, when WG Grace opened the batting for England and scored the country's first century.

Stephenson is also reputed to be the first cricketer to be awarded a hat for taking three wickets in consecutive balls – hence the derivation of the phrase 'hat trick'.

This auspicious occasion took place in Sheffield in 1858.

Thames Ditton CC has played on Giggs Hill Green since 1833, and the first recorded match was against

Living history: The engraving of Thames Ditton CC member Heathfield Stephenson, who was in the first England team to tour Australia in the early 1860s Twickenham.

The scorecard of that game is in the club's pavilion and a commemorative match will be played between the two teams this summer.

Various other events are being planned, starting with a Caribbean tour, summer ball, past players' lunch.

RUGBY UNION: Twickenham RFC, a friendly rugby club with the most famous name in the sport, has a thriving minis section but is short of players in the U9s age group. The club, based in South Road, Hampton, offers top-class coaching for youngsters wanting to take up the sport. Anyone interested should come to training this Sunday, or the following week, from 10am, complete with boots and mouth guard. For details go to twickenham.youthrugby.com

GENERAL: Special Olympics Surrey have organised an athletics, boccia and football club for all Kingston borough resident aged eight to 80. It is held at Richard Challoner School in Manor Drive North, New Malden, every Monday (6-8pm) and costs £3 a session. There is also weekly ten pin bowling at Charrington Bowl in Kingston Road, Tolworth, on Tuesdays (7-9pm). For details call 020 8336 2768

FOOTBALL: Molesey's faint hopes of avoiding relegation from Ryman Division One South took another blow on Saturday when they slumped to a 3-1 win at Worthing. A defensive error from Phil Caughter allowed the hosts to take the lead, and despite Rob Wilkinson equalising, Molesey conceded two second-half goals to seal their fate.

White stuff: Hampton's Frankie Simonds on her way to victory in the giant slalom at the British Schoolgirls' titles

Hampton schoolgirl Simonds aces her Italian test

Franki Simonds has just returned from the All England Alpine Ski Championships in Bormio, Italy, as English giant slalom champion, for a third straight year.

The 17-year-old, who is studying for her A levels at Lady Eleanor Holles School in Hampton, is a member of the England alpine A team.

Although this has limited her racing and training time mainly to school holidays,

Franki has enjoyed success in the few races she has compete in, including finishing as best Briton in a giant slalom event in Norway at Christmas, and winning individual honours at the British Schoolgirls' competition earlier this month.

Franki now puts aside her skis to concentrate on school until after Easter, when she will compete in the British and Scottish Championships at Meribel.

Casuals close in on survival

Corinthian Casuals assistant boss Keith Holloway insists safety is in sight after his side edged a point closer to Ryman Division One South survival on Saturday.

A goalless draw at Walton Casuals hoisted Casuals eight points clear of the drop zone and, with games against all their fellow strugglers on the horizon, Holloway is confident.

He said: "We still have to play the sides at the bottom so it is in our own hands.

"With Molesey and Horsham YMCA coming up, if we get something out of those games we should be home and dry.

"Having said that, it is all well and good to talk about it but, if you lose those games, suddenly you are back in trouble so we have to be on guard."

First, though, Casuals host Dulwich Hamlet on Saturday.

Red card costly

Chessington & Hook showed plenty of attacking enterprise but paid the price for wasted chances in a 2-0 defeat at home to Horley Town last Saturday.

Despite their profligacy, the home side appeared to be in control of the match until striker Dan Moorhouse was sent off on the hour for stamping after taking exception to an aerial challenge.

Phil Page came on for Neil Wicks as a tactical change but, before the team could adjust, Horley took the lead.

Still Chessington refused to lie down but, with 17 minutes left to play, the visitors used their numerical advantage to add a second and kill off the match.

Chessington visit Egham Town this weekend.

Ks boss wants big finish

by STUART AMOS

samos@london.newsquest.co.uk

Kingstonian boss Alan Dowson believes his struggling side must end the season the way they started to have any chance of making the Ryman League Division One South play-offs.

Ks crashed 3-2 at home to Burgess Hill Town on Saturday, when it looked like goals from Tom Williams and Bobby Traynor had salvaged at least a point.

It means Dowson's men have won just three of their past 16 league encounters – conceding 25 goals in the process – to drift out of the league's top five.

It is in stark contrast to the opening 10 matches, which brought seven wins, including four clean sheets.

The Ks chief, who fears he will be without his captain, defender Simon Sobihy, for four weeks with an ankle injury, is clear where the team's challenge has gone wrong, but remains confident they can deliver a miracle turnaround.

"We keep giving the opposition goals, it is as simple as that," he said.

"While we keep doing that, we will not get anywhere.

"We are on a dreadful run and it is not good enough.

"We have got to remain positive. We have got to win seven or eight games from our last 10 at least.

"The start of the season proves we can put that sort of run together and, if we can do that again, then we have a chance of saving the season."

Goals from Dean Lodge and Simon Huckle saw off Redhill, managed by former Ks boss Stuart McIntyre, in the Surrey Senior Cup on Monday night.

But Dowson, who confirmed QPR loanee Aaron Goode would not be returning to the club as rumoured, insisted silverware in the county competition would not make up for failure on the promotion front.

"You want to win every competition you enter, but promotion or a top-five finish was the target at the start of the season," he added.

"If we miss that target but win the cup, we will still have failed in my eyes. Silverware is no consolation."

Ks travel to play-off rivals Met Police on Saturday and the significance of the clash has not been lost on Dowson, who is chasing a new centre-half ahead of the trip.

He said: "It is a massive game.

"Both teams have got a lot to play for and it should be a cracker."

RUGBY UNION: Kingston moved four points clear at the top of Surrey One when they were awarded a walkover victory against strugglers Old Amplefordians at the weekend. With four matches to play – starting with the visit of Old Caterhamians this Saturday – Ks are in the box seat to win promotion to the London League.

Weekend rugby round-up: yourlocalguardian.co.uk

ATHLETICS: Kingston & Polytechnic's international all-rounder Dominique Blaize won the women's high jump at last weekend's Brunel University indoor jumps meeting with a clearance of 1.80m. Gordon Lester won the men's U17 pole vault with 4m, Ryan Clancy was runner-up in the men's U17 high jump (1.70m) and Patrick Hillier runner-up in the men's U17 triple jump (11.65m).

RUGBY UNION: Old Emanuel will be looking to work their way up the Surrey Division Two table when they host Old Rutlishians on Saturday. Sixth-placed Emanuel are only three points behind league leaders Bec Old Boys in a very tight division.

ATHLETICS: The Kingston mini marathon trials will be held at Bushy Park this Sunday (10am). Children who will be aged between 11 and 17 on London Marathon day, April 13, and who attend school in Kingston are eligible.
